The Phantom Legions

Are we forgotten,
We who saved the world?
For over our graves no banner waves
But a poppy-flag unfurled.
Does God alone remember,
And only man forget,
When the world rolls on thru dark and dawn
And the red days glow and set.

Are we forgotten?
No! we are not forgotten,
We who gave our youth
For the glorious Right and the flaming light
Of Justice, Love and Truth.
Behold our banners flying
Where waves of poppies nod
And we shout our thanks from life's red fields,
And the radiant Throne of God.

THE SUPREME ADVENTURE

Song

Poem by
GORDON JOHNSTONE

Music by
WARD-STEPHENS

Moderato molto mp
When you come to the turn of the road
On the last long journey of all; — When the a tempo shades of night are fall - ing, And you hear a - far of call, Then go you forth with a f mf

- - - - song
For every lonely mile;
As a soldier goes to the fate he knows,
And greet your doom with a smile.

When you come to the end of the road
On that supreme adventure of all,
When the gates of life are closing,
And you stand in the judgement hall,
Then take your fate with a jest,
Let no weak cry defile;
As a brave man stands with outstretched hands,
So meet your God with a smile.
